Pitiable Scenes.

One by one the pitiable features of the wreck of the Larache are becoming known, the sad story constituting one of the most tragic episodes in the record of shipwrecks off this dangerous part of the Spanish coast. A striking narrative is that of the second officer, who says he was leaving the bridge, at the same time, remarking to the pilot the proximity of the Brullos rocks, when there was a crash and a shock followed by a scone of terrifying confusion, whilst frantic shricks were heard on every side. The vessel sank ontirely in six minutes. A few sailors lowered a small boat and picked up the body of the captain, who had plunged overboard nude, shouting wildly, "I am dying. Good-bye my wife overalls and coats in order to cover the rescued women as they were landed, the was going at a speed of 12 miles an hour

Bodies from the Larache are being wash-

· Harrowing scenes were witnessed as the vessel struck. Lifebelts and planks of wood were fought for, even knives and revolvers being used. One passenger had two lifebelts and refused to give one up.

His selfishness was of no avail, for he perished with both. The cries from women facing death as they pressed their children to their bosoms were heartrending. More than forty passengers were unable to reach the sdeck, and their death-cries, as the water, rushed in on them, were mingled with the confusion on deck. Some women asked a fireman for lifebelts, and on one being handed to them a deadly struggle ensued for its possession. By others the nearest object was grasped that appeared were washed over the sides of the ship clinging to all kinds of articles. One poor woman, a third-class passenger, was seen sinking with four children clinging to her.

In addition to the captain, the chaplain, the doctor, the first engineer (an Englishman named Thomson), and the third ongineer perished. A wealthy family comprising father and mother and four daughters were washed overhoard together, clasping each other to the last. They struggled frantically in the waves, and only

BRIGANDACE IN TONKING.

Official Action Criticised. The outlaws in Tonking, whom the French called pirates, are, properly speaking, brigands, who infest the country both on land and water, says a Straits contem-

One of their resorts is the province of Bac-ninh, where they have just murdered a French Officer. There, the brigands, openly and successfully defy the forces of the Government. Long impunity in that quarter has made them numerous and formidable. This need arouse no wonder, considering that the troops in the field consist of native soldiers, whose lives are too precious to be risked in frontal attacks on brigand fastnesses. Just before the murder of the Officer, a band of brigands made their appearance on the railway line between Hanoi and Bac-ninh, and inflicted loss on some native levies, who encountered them. Upon this, SIDEBOARD with BEVELLED MIRROR, the Resident sent for a detachment of enemy. The troops met the brigants 1 which they had turned into a fortress, so

The Commander of the troops found himself in afix. To send the regulars Woodlark across the open to carry the stronghold by storm, under heavy fire from the brigands, meant heavy loss and certain death to many of his men, to little purpose. The only alternative was to blow up the house along with its garrison. But, this resource failed him from no explosives being hand. The result was that the brigands A Haiphong paper rightly wonders why the troops in the field are not supplied with melinite bombs. Such engines of destruction would save much loss of life among the soldiery operating against the

Yet no bombs are supplied to the roops, though the brigands have often lefied them safely from fortified houses, which the troops would not attack from fear of a loss of life, not worth while to to incur against outlaws.

The result of this weak-kneed policy s that the brigand bands in that section of Tonking increase steadily in numbers and strength. Pessimists say that in time they will become too many to be terrified by melinite bombs.

CHINA AND JAPAN,

WE are at one with those who sincerely desire to see the bringing about of the re-establishment of harmonious relations, political and commercial, between the progress can only be achieved by empires of China and Japan. Bickerings between neighbours are never edifying in the domestic wena of life but when indulged in by neighbouring nations they are apt to develop dangerous potentialities. There is no gainsaying the fact, deplorable though it be, that a very miserable state of petty bickering has existed in the Far East almost from the moment of the signing of the treaty of peace at Portsmouth in New Hamphire which closed the unhappy con- there is always two sides to a question. flict between Russia and Japan, The matshed as evolved by Hongkong and unfortunately some of these builders after several decades of pracpetty trivialities have been pursued tical experience is not a miserable make almost beyond the danger point. A matshed put up to accomonce caused Japan a good deal of heart- modate Indian troops is by no means burning. In the days prior to the a cheap affeir, and under favourable

Curiously enough it was the study of the Chinese classics during the early decades of the nine can fleet at Suwa. teenth century which first set Japan's feet towards the new ways. The nation delivered in London on July 31. was being prepared for the changes inaugurated in the Era of Enlightened Government long before Commodore Perry's black ships anchored off Uraga, and it was from China more than from the few Dutch books which in through the little back window at Deshima that Japanese and scholars drew their inspiration and deduced the theories which their successors have so cleverly put into practice. To this day Japanese scholars delight in the Chinese classics. Their public speakers use Chinese quotations to round off their periods, point their illustrations, drive home their arguments and generally adorn their eloquence just as Gladstone European missionary in South India, who and the men of his day drew on the writers and philosophers of Greece and Rome. Japan in many aspects of the term still sits at the feet of the Chinese sages of antiquity, and nothing has hurt this highly sensitive people more than No anonymously signed communications that the manner in which China has met such until General Barrow returns from her advances and mis-interpreted her Orders for extra copies of the 'CHINA MAIL | motives. But-of this we are certain—at no time since the close of 1904 has she been more ready to let bygones be bygones and to hold out the olive branch to her ancient teacher and nearest neighbour. It will be a happy day for both nations when the statesmen and merchants of China and Japan fully realise that mutual interests demand they should be sincere friends and fellow-workers in the new fields of opportunity now opening throughout the Far East; when they realise the truth of Thackeray's dictum that solid

HOW H.M.S. WHITING WAS REFLOATED.

Vessel Badly Damaged.

Previous to the night of the 27th and the morning of the 28th when the terrible typhoon struck the Colony, H.M.S. Whiting was lying at anchor at Junk Bay, but while the storm raged in all its fury the cables were carried away. The hurricane: Luzon less than 300 miles distant moving vecred right round from the North East to N. or N. N. E. Ever since Tuesday afternoon work has been going on night and day without ceasing to tow the vessel off the rocks and this was successfully accomplished on Saturday. The men of H.M.S. Tamar etc., under the commund of mander Grenfield, R.N., and Lieut Isaacson, R.N., worked as only British sailors know how, to remove the guns coal and stores from the ship and to lighten her in every way possible, notwithstanding the discomforts of a broiling sun by day. and having to carry out their difficult task by the aid of candles and lamps by night. Only on two nights out of the four, during which the work was proceeding, had they the great advantage of electricity to supplement the condles and lamps.

The whole of the operations in lifting and refloating the Whiting were under the personal direction of Chief Constructor W. T. Hockaday, of the Royal Corps of Naval Constructors, and it is to his energy, perseverence and able management, combined with the enthusiastic way the men of the Tamar, Bramble and Thistle, under Commander Grenfield, R.N. and Lieut. Issacson, R.N. met every obstacle and successfully overcame it, that the vessel was refloated at all. Had the Whiting not been towed off on Saturday it ANOTHER FLOOD IN KWANGSI would undoubtedly have been a total wreck on account of the fact that the tide is fall-.. ing and will continue to do so for about a week.

Through the kindness, courtesy and consideration of Messrs Butterfield and Sw re. and the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co., who lent their excellent and sufficient pumping apparatus the work of refleating the vessel was made considerably easier and if it had not been for such assistance it is quite probable that the Whiting would have had to have been abandoned as the Naval authorities at Hongkong were not in pliances as were needed.

A series of small oil drums about 350 in number were also requisitioned to assist the buoyance of the vessel. Some were made fast by a steel wire which was passed round the bilge of the ship at low water while others were placed in the various compartments.

Before the operations commenced the engine and the boiler rooms were full of water which rose and fell with the ebb and flow of the tide.

The master of the Navai tug boat Cherub and the tug boat David Gillies, under the command of Captain Majer, rendered invaluable assistance and the fact that the damaged vessel was safely docked at No 3 dock Kowloon one hour after it was re floated, and having been towed for about eight miles, is a feat to be proud of.

It has been found that the Whiting has been badly damaged more especially i the engine and aft boiler rooms besides other places. The repairs which are to be carried out by the Hongkong and Whampon Dock Co., are expected to occupy several weeks.

While the work was going on Rear Admiral Robert H. S. Stokes paid several visits to the ship. The Chief Constructor. Officers and men are now suffering from the prolonged exposure to which they were subjected.

This reclamation was a pa ticularly difficult task, and no less th one million cubic yards of filling, consisting of quarry rubbish, etc., had to be utilised in the work. A tremendous quantity of timber was utilised in the construction of the dam and the foundations of the dock. This was obtained from the China Borneo Company. The amount of cement used was also very large, no less than 52,000 tons. The Green Island Cement Co. supplied this and it is satisfactory to record that the coment stood all the tests and showed no signs of deterioration, During the busiest period of the extension work some 5,000 employees were at work with a European staff of 50.

Mr A. J. Williams, A. M. I. C. E., the representative of Messrs Punchard, Lowther and Co., supervised, and brought to a successful issue, this gigantic undertaking
